BAUER AND MULDOON.

THE GERMAN WRESTLER DENIES THE ACCUSA-TIONS OF HIS RIVAL AND REPAYS THEM WITH COMPOUND INTEREST-TEUE INWARD-NESS OF GRÆCO-ROMAN CONTESTS.

"I spoke the truth. I swear now to what I said, and this is the only retraction I shall ever offer," as he handed him the following affidavit;-- as he handed him the following affidavit;—

("ty and county of New York, a.s.,—Thebaud Bauer, of No. 149 Wooster street, in said city and county of New York, being duly sworn deposes and says, that the states ments herestore made by this deposent in the Madison Square Garden and in other piaces in this cit; in reference to the wrestling march between Officer Maidoon and this deponent, to the effect that the falls and the result of said match had been prearranged between this deponent and the said Muldoon; and that said sarangement was entered into and completed at the proposition and solicitation of said Muldoon; are the proposition and solicitation of said Muldoon; the said sarangement with the aforesaid agreement. This deponent relevance with the aforesaid agreement. This deponent relevance with the aforesaid agreement, this deponent relevance with the aforesaid agreement. This deponent relevance with the aforesaid agreement, this deponent relevance with the aforesaid agreement. This deponent relevance with the aforesaid agreement, this deponent relevance with the safety and county.

"I want to hear his reply to that," the wrestler continued, "and then I shall have a longer story to tell about Muldoon. Meestair Muldoon! (suddenly breaking into English with a very short 'Mul' and a very long 'doon') he is such a very honest man. He is an impostor. What do I care about him. I speak the truth and I can prove that I do. I will wrestle him for a purse in a private room. Let him come. We shall soon see. Meestair Muldoon! He is so very good, eh? (making a face expressive of intense ontempt). Meestair Muldoon!"
"How did you come to arrange the details of the match you refer to?"

match you refer to?"
"Muldoon proposed it to me. He came a great many times to the saloon where I am usually to be found and asked me to do it. He always led me out into the garden to talk, so that nobody could hear

"What did he say?" "He said that for the sake of his reputation and friends he could not afford to lose the match and that I could have the money."

"Did you get the money?" "I did. Mr. Kelly gave me $400. Muldoop came to me before the match and asked me to practice th him and show him how it was to be done, and I showed him in the back room of his own house. Ve then went to Mr. Kelly-he was doing the busi ness part of it—and Muldoon said to him, 'We came to tell you how this thing is going to be done.' Mr. Kelly said, 'What do you mean?' and Muldoon told him, 'We want to explain to you how it is going to come off.' Mr. Kelly replied, 'If I thought it was not going to be straight, I would have had nothing whatever to do with it. 'Well,' Muldoon said, 'I have been sick and I don't feel very strong and I'm afraid that I may not be able to go through so we have arranged what we are going to do.' 'In that case,' said Mr. Kelly, 'I don't want to know anything about it. If you have any business of that kind between you, go and settle it among yourselves,' and he walked away. I fixed it with Muldoon how and he walked away. I fixed it with Muldoon how he should throw me and at what time in the game, and showed him just the way to do it, because, you understand, I was not going to be flung down any-how. I went on the carpet very easy, I assure you. I was not going to allow myself to be hurt. He made me sign a paper that I shall take the money and that he get the match."

"ALL DISHONEST."

"Are wrestling matches usually done in this way?"

"They are."

"At the set the match."

"Ate wrostling matches usually done in this way?"

"They are"

"What, all prepared in advance and dishonest?"

"We every one. I am telling the truth. I'm not a fraid of it. If Muldoon is so fine a man what did he go to Baltimore for with another professional wrostler and give exhibitions there, Meestair Muldoon? He assumed a faise name. He called himself Andrew Dennell, the 'Maryland farmer,' from Allegiany county, and wrestled in two matches that were prearranged."

"What do you think of him as a wrestler?"

"He is no wrestler. He is a coward. Let him come and meet me now and see whether I will go down. He must go talk to Charles Murphy, who threw him at Lynn, in Massachusetts. That was not niced, I suppose, because he went down. But he changed his name sgain, and this time went as the proof of Causala, Meestair Muldoon, the changed his name sgain, and this time went as the company of the kind necessary for a wrestler. What toolishness! But it is just as true as the other things Muldoon has said."

"Are you sure the matches he was engaged in outside of New York were dishonest?"

"Yes, quite sure. I know all about them."

"Who were they with?"

"That I must not tell. The man is a professional, and it would not do. Muldoon says he don't want to meet me. Then he is afraid. Way does he not meet Christol? I will tell you. Secause Christol would throw him. Yes, and the little man the other night would not do. Muldoon says he don't want to meet me. Then he is afraid. Way does he not meet Christol? I will tell you. Secause Christol would throw him. Yes, and the little man the other night would not do. Muldoon says he don't want to meet me. Then he is afraid. Way does he not meet Christol? I will tell you. Secause Christol would throw him. Yes, and the little man the other night would not do. Muldoon says he don't want to meet me. Then he is afraid. Way does he not meet Christol? I will tell you. Secause Christol would throw him. Yes, and the little man the other night would not do. Muldoon say made bets on mo. If that is so he had no right to be referee. I was not in condition that night, and I was thrown; but I want to meet that man again and have an honest judge, and I can throw him. I will find backers in a couple of days, and then I will show them. It is on my heart until I can re-deem myself."

"What do you, think of Muldoon and his state-

"What do you, think of Muldoon and his statements?"

"When he said I gave him lessons at $3 apiece he lied. I never gave him any lessons and if I did give lessons to anybody it would cost more than $3 apiece. I think Muldoon is talking too much. It would be much better for him to come down and let us see what he can do. I never wrestled with him. I want to because I know I can throw him. He is a great 'pout.' Here is a man, Mr. Hess, who trained him and who has never yet been paid for his labor. Yes, sir; this man worked him through a whole match and before it and never got a dollar."

WHAT DETECTIVE ADAMS THINKS.

"His own words in reference to Bauer will best suit me," said Detective "Tommy" Adams. "I cannot afford to lower myself to the level of that man. His statement is one series of falsehoods. Ha! ha! It's too rich."

"What do you refer to?"

"The whole thing. I did not get thirty days to start the Police Athletic Club. I never got a single day. When I wont West it was to attend to some business for my uncle and I went straight to Kansas. Finishing my business sooner than I expected and having ten days to spare out of my thirty, I went up to Detroit. There I met Bauer and Christol and Murphy, of Chicago. I never gave exhibitions with them and I am not a wrestler."

"How about the athletic club bills?"

"It's all rubbish. What has he waited twenty months for to make all these charges? Why were they not presented to the committee of investigation at the time of the abolition of the club? Mr. Plummer's bill was for either $25 or $30, I think $25. He gave $5 of it to Miller for attending to some of the business in his absence. It was audited by Captain Wallams and Muldoon, and was perfectly fair and square."

"What of the medal story?"

Williams and Muldoon, and was perfectly fair and square."

"What of the medal story?"

"There is not a word of truth in it. The medals were gold and silver, and they cost what was charged for them. Before I purchased them I went to Capiain Williams with the bill, and he considered they were cheap. On that I ordered them, and Mr. Luther, the gentleman who made them, can very easily prove the truth of what I say."

"Was Bauer talking at your suggestion the other night in the Madison Square Gardon?"

"ire was not. I saw that he was excited and was going away without telling the people that Christol had given up the contest, as was his cuty, and I called him back. I had no idea that he was going to say a word about Muldoon."

"He states that you have an old emity against him."

called him back. I had no idea that he was going to any a word about Muldoon."

"He states that you have an old enmity against him."

"Well, I haven't. I consider him a very good fellow. At least, I did until to-day. The trouble with him is that he thinks every one is against him who won't make much of him. He wanted to take $150 out of the club one time to pay Bauer to wrestle him and I objected. That was a stop to his aggrandizement, and he has never forgiven me. Another time I blackened both his eyes, and that offended his dignity and his estimate of his prowess. He was kind up in ted for four days, and you see what a little fellow I am in comparison with him. I noticed that all the follows from the Twenty-minth precinct came into the club with their eyes black and their noses barked. I asked a lot of them, "Who's been at you." They said, 'Muldoon. One day he came and asked me to step up for a little practice. I refused, Miler urged me on, saying it was only for exercise. I went in and soon found that he came at me full force. I dodged, but the next one I caught on the paw, and I tell you the stars that illuminated my vision were a caution. Well, when they had disappeared! went for him across, and I soon raised a couple of mountains round his peepers that sent him home with his hands up for blinkers."

"In ever heard any such conversation," said Mr. Kelly when asked about the one above as given by Bauer. "I was in Albany at the time, and it is not likely it could reach me there. If they had any arrangement between them I knew nothing of it, nor old the public. If it was all arranged beforehand it was the best carried out arrangement I ever heard of, and I don't believe it was."

"Did you pay $400 to Baner?"

"No, sir: I paid it to Muldoon. The receipts, after paying expenses, were $500. Half I gave to the winner, and that was Muldoon: the other half was divided between Bauer and myself, according to agreement."

of business said he was sure he (Hill) knew nothing of the proposition made on behalf of MacMahon.

"I did go to Baltimore and I wrestled twice there during one of my vacations," said Muldoon, "but the matches were honest ones, and no one can prove to the coutrary. My father and mother live in Allegany county, New York, and I found when I got to Baltimore the report had got abroad that the Allegany county was in Maryland. The former part of the business I am not responsible for and was much displeased with. Whatever other wrestling I have done cutside of this city was done when I was free from duty and when the time was my own. As to the statements about Mr. Hoss and the other talk I can only laugh at it. It is not worth while replying to such stuff, therefore I shall not attempt to do so."

A meeting of athletes was held at the Clipper office at noon yesterday to make arrangements for the proposed contest for what is to be known as the "Stock Exchange Beit." Miller, Pauer and Christol were present, but owing to the absence of Muldoon were present, but owing to the absence of Muldoon and the other wrestlers who were expected nothing was done in the matter. The three men waited an hour and no further addition to the company arriving they left the office. Each said he was willing and ready to wrestle and that he had the necessary entrance fee of $100 in his pocket to make good his appearance at the time specified. They seemed disappointed that the proposed tournament should be allowed to rail through. Miller expressed himself as ready to enter any contest, whether Muldoon was in it or not, and so did Bauer. They were astonished at the absence of Muldoon, and separated to await the next action on the part of the promoters of the tournament. It had been suggested that the wrestlers tiemselves subscribe to a fund for a belt and then get up a contest for that and the gate money, and they were ready for even that, but they felt that it would be necessary for all the well known men in the country to be included in the match, and then each working on his merits to let the best man capture the prize and the money.

A "GOOD" MAN.

There had been a fight in Jim Brady's barroom, on Ninth avenue, and its fruit was the issuing of a couple of warrants and a half-dozen summonses from the Yorkville Police Court Bench. The non-combatants who had witnessed the fray, though reticent when approached, were easy enough to find, but the officers found it hard work indeed to lay hands on the participants. At length, a couple of nights igo, they surprised the cause of the disturbance. a gentleman who was variously addressed as "Tim" or "Bunty" Kelly. He displayed a natural reluctance to accompany his captors, and laid one sprawling on the pavement, while he thoroughly ralized the rest before they got him under lock and key. "Bunty" was examined next day and committed, much to the chagrin several of the first families of Ninth avenue, who yesterday deputed Jem Brady to come to court and intercede in his behalf. That gentteman had on his best clothes when he entered, and he nodded patronizingly to a couple of officers and winked his encouragement to several of his constituency on the benches. When His Honor gave him a hearing he laid his silk hat on the bar and titted himself against it.

"I dropped in, Jedge," he began, "t' see if you wouldn't let up on 'Bunty' Kelly. 'Ho's not a bad follow, 'Bunt' ain't, and the boys on the avenue feel sore about this affair, I can tell you."

"I have heard a good deal about him," said His Honor doubtfully. "Do you mean to say that he's a good man?"

"A good man!" said the other solemnly. "Jedge, there's more in that little fellow than any one thinks if he was handled right. A good man, ch! Why, between you and me, he's a better man than Jem Mace."

The Court did not dispute this encomium, but avenue, who yesterday deputed Jem Brady

Mace."
The Court did not dispute this encomium, but went on to say:—
"No matter about that. I've heard of his conduct. He wasn't right."
"Not right! Why, Jedge, 'Bunt' was a right man all around. He never give anything away. He wouldn't squeal if he knew where all the stolen money in the world was hid. That's the kind of a man he is."

The Court smiled grimly, but asked—"How about his attack on the officer?"
"Ah, they didn't take him right. He'd be gentle as a nurse-baby if they did. But when they were coming it reugh on him wasn't it time for him to put up his hands?"
"Put them up where?"
Jem Brady looked at His Honor in surprise.
"In posish, of course, so's he could down the officer. 'Bunt' was sore on him, anyway, for he had put him away twice before."
"In away twice before."
"In ak amazement from Brady once more. Then he said, "In the jug. Sent him up."
"Oh," said His Honor, "I see, and on reflection I fail to find sufficient—that is, hardly sufficient—grounds to release Mr. Kelly. He may be all you say, but the previous good character you give him and the other admirable qualities to which you refer can hardly outweigh the evidence."

Jem Brady went off in a huff, and was heard to declare outside that "You couldn't expect no better from a linkhead that didn't know United States."

KNOCKED DOWN AND ROBBED.

in the Twenty-ninth precinct. But this was a mistake. The complainant was William Jackson, a native of Montreal, Canada, thirty-eight years of age. He is a stranger in the city, having arrived from Canada but a few days ago. At half-past eight P. M. last Friday he was about visiting a friend in the Bowery, but at Chatham square was dealt a powerful blow from behind by some heavy bludgeon. He has a dim recoilection that when falling he threw up his hands to grotect himself from further injury, when he received another severe blow on the knuckles which rendered his hand powerless. When consciousness was restored he found himself in a hospital with a doctor and soveral assistants attending to his injuries. He was suffering from a sovere wound in the back of the head, but plasters and bandages stopped the flow of blood, and he was left to recuperate the best way he could. Yesterday morning he was sufficiently recovered to be able to leave the heapital, and then, for the first time, became aware that robbery was the motive of the dastardly assault. He discovered that his pantaloons pockets had been turned inside out and that the sum of $300, all the money he possessed, was missing. When further questioned Mr. Jackson said that he has no recollection of seeing a policeman at the time of the outrage; his impression is that he was cared for by civilians; but how he came to be conveyed to the hospital he was still so prostrated and nervous from loss of blood that he neglected to inquire its name, but when Chambers Street Hospital was suggested he said that he was pretty certain that was the one, as he remembers being in the vicinity of the City Hall.

That Mr. Jackson had been severely injured there could be no hanner of doubt; his bandaged head and bloodstained garments bere ample testimony to that fact. He was besides in a highly nervous condition, and shook like a man stricken with an ague. He had no knowledge of who his unknown assailant could be, and has, he believes, no enemies in the city. He claims that he was perfectly sober at the time and that he is not in the habit of drinking. In proof of his veracity and respectability he produced a number of letters which showed that he was on friendly terms with some of the leading citizens of Montreal, among whom may be mentre he was about visiting a friend in the Bowery, but at Chathant square was dealt a powerful blow from

RESPECT THE SABBATH.

THE NEW JERSEY PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD PASSES SOME SIGNIFICANT RESOLUTIONS—THRUSTS AT NEWARK POLITICIANS.

TRENTON, Oct. 25, 1879. After three days' session in this city, the New Jersey Presbyterian Synod has just adjourned. At the closing hours the subject of Sabbath observance received much attention, and without debate the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:-Resolved. That we affectionately exhort both the officers and people of all our congregations to greatly increased modify in both example and the giving of religious instruction as to the daity of a strict observance of the Sabath, and expecially that the young be faithfully trained in both the family and the clurren to keep the day holy.

The strict of the daity of a strict observance of the Sabath, and expecially that the young be faithfully trained in both the family and the clurren to keep the day holy.

Conscience in general should be in our power the public conscience in general should be in our power the public right of our citizens to a day in common from untrother rest from labor and for quiet, undisturbed worship, and as to the duty of active eco-operation to maintain and enforce the time-honored statutes of New Jersey on this subject.

Resolved. That we renew the expression of our deep conviction that the maintenance of morals and religion in any community depends assentially upon a Sabbath protected by civil authority and kept holy by all who admit its divine sanction.

Resolved, That we regard those who are seeking to remove all legal and social barriers against secular labor and announcement upon the Sabbath day as enemies to the highest and host interests of man, and to be resisted mest certically by all law ull means within our power.

Resolved, that we recommend to all our passors and to others supplying our publics to preach upon the subject of Sabbath observance on the third Sonday of November coming, or as soon threather as convolvent, and to keep it always preminently before the minds of the people.

BAFFLED PADRONES.

TWO PARTIES OF ITALIANS MEET WITH A WARM RECEPTION FROM THE EMIGRATION OFFICIALS AT CASTLE GAIDEN TWO AGED PERACISCAN.

MONES AND A YOUTHFUL MUSICIAN PLACED UNDER EMBARGO.

A few days ago the Italian Consul in this city notified Precident Gerry, of the Society for the Prevention of Crueity to Children, that he had received information of the coming to this port of several padrones with a number of children, who were to be used for begging purposes. Mr. Gerry requested Superintendent Jackson immediately telegraphed for Mr. Gerry. During the atternoon E. Pellowes Jenkins, Secretary of the Society, and Officer Chirari put in an appearance, and Superintendent Jackson immediately telegraphed for Mr. Gerry. During the atternoon E. Pellowes Jenkins, Secretary of the Society, and Officer Chirari put in an appearance, and Superintendent Jackson, with the sid of Interpretor MacPherson, commenced an examination of the suspected parties. They were called in one at a time and questioned colosisty as to their antecedents and future prospects. The first case investigated was that of two old men who were dwarfs, and who, it was thought, were brought here to beg, as they were too old to work, being nearly seventy years of age. Bocce Cabrace, the narry who brought them to this port, was first examined. He stated that he had been in the country eight years and that he had a wife and five children in Chicago, where he surmed a livelihood by selling truit. The old men were his uncles and bore the maines of Rocce and Eight Officers, and he was thought, were brought here to begg, as they were too old to work, being nearly seventy years of age. Bocce Cabrace, the narry who brought them to this port, was first examined. He stated that he had been in this country eight years and that he had a wife and five children in Chicago, where he surmed a manufacture of the state of the dwarfs as account of the state of the dwarfs as account of the state of the dwarfs as account of the state of the dwarfs as a years of age. Rocco Labraico, the bary who brought them to this port, was first examined. He stated that he had a wife and five children in Chicago, where he earned a livelihood by selling fruit. The old men were his uncles and bore the names of Rocco and Egidio Ungaro. He had paid $50 for their passage from Naples to this city, and intended to take them to Chicago and provide for them. He found them starving in Italy and thought they could get along better here. He demed that his purpose was to send thom out begging. Having been asked about his uncle's antecedents Labraico said that for twenty-five years they had been Franciscan friars attached to a monastery at Laurenzana, Province of Basilicata, but the monastery was broken up twelve years ago and since that time they had carned their living as laborers.

Rocco Ungaro, seventy years of age and the oldest of the dwarfs, was then called in and corroborated the statement of Labraico in every particular. When Egidio Ungaro, the second dwarf, was examined no stated at first that Labraico was his brother-in-law, but afterward said that he (Labraico) was a nephew by marriage. He admitted that he had promised to do whatever kind of work Labraico wished and said that a contract to that effect had been drawn up by Dom Pietro Laurai, a notary at Laurenzana.

was a nephew by marriage. He admitted that he had promised to do whatever kind or work Labraico wished and said that a contract to that effect had boom drawn up by Dom Pietre Laurai, a notary at Labraico was recalled and denied positively that any contract had been made. He said that he had been in the habit of sending money to his uncles from time to time for thosi support, and he fitought here. He expressed great indignation at being considered a padrone, but when confronted with the statement of his uncle, Egidio, that a contract had been made, he turned on that individual and called him some very hard names in the Italian language.

Support his uncles in this country Labraico, after considerable hesitation, answered in the affirmative. Superintendent Jackson decided to hold the dwarfs until he has learned the nature of the contract from the notary of the contract from the vorge. Francisco frosteed, however, to swear that the latter was his right parent.

The next case was that of three Italian boys of the contract from the contract fr the little man stood on the prisoner's stand humming and hawing to attract the Court's attention, He was a meek looking creature, with his shirt collar awry and his necktic securely knotted under his and though he did not seem to be a drinking man the Court officers instinctively put him down as a mortal for whom visions of snakes and pink rabbits were specially reserved. At last His Honor looked up from the affidavit he was scanning and saw him. Magisterial severity took possossion of him at once, and he sternly demanded—

"What's this all about? You're in a nice state."
"My poor dear wife," the meek man began; "she wouldn't harm a fly—
But His Honor interrupted with, "No use trying to lay the blame on her then. I hear too much of this getting drunk and saying it was a wife's fault."
"But my dear wife—" the other persisted.
"You ought to be at home with her and not rioting about the streets," said the Court.
"But you don't understand. She's a dear, good woman, and—" "I understand all about it. You can't come here after a debauch and puff up your wife only to tell me she's been the cause of it. No, no, my boy; I've got that story before."
"Pon my word, sir, it's for her dear sake I've come—" and though he did not seem to be a drinking more

"Pon my word, sir, it's for her dear sake I've come—"
But His Honor could not stand it any longer.
"Oh, bosh!" he said; "I can't sit listening to that baiderdash. Up you go for ten days."
At that the meek man suddenly became bold as a lion and roared out at the top of nis voice:—
"Hullup! I sin't a prisoner. I come to beg off Maria Watson. She's locked up for getting drunk and playing the dence about the diggings, and whaling her husband John till he's nigh knocked to bits."

whaling her husband John till he's high stack bits."

"Oh!" ejaculated the Court," and where's John?"

"I'm him. That's me," murmured the applicant, dissolving into meekness once again.

"Oho! I see," said His Honor, as the truth dawned on him. "That's the poor dear creature you spoke of just now, who wouldn't hurt a fly. Go home, John, and bet all your change that that loving and sweet tempered person won't bother you or the 'diggings' for six months to come."

WORKMEN IN DANGER.

In the drying room roar of the four story brick building which extends from No. 115 to No. 121 East Thirteenth street yesterday afternoon a fire broke out from some unknown cause. The dry-ing room is attached to the hard wood works of Ering room is attached to the hard wood works of Erharlt, Hagen & Co., who occupy the basement and ground floors of the main building. Owing to the inflammable nature of the property stered there the flames spread quickly, and in a few minutes the faming rooms in the rear were all ablaze. The alarm was instantly given by the workmen who discovered it, and in a few minutes a large detachment of firemen arrived. Before the first engines arrived the fire had gained considerable headway, but in a few minutes it was checked and extinguished. The building, which is a large one, is rented by several firms, and at the time the alarm was given was filled with workmen. They succeeded in escaping by ladders to the street, and others made their way across the roof to Grote's ivery manufactory, which fronts on Fourteenth street, and through which they descended to the ground. Echardt & Hagen's stock and machinery were badly damaged by both fire and water, as was also that of John Williams, dealer in gas fixtures, who rents the second story. H. E. Jackson, manufacturer of trimmings, who occupies the upper floors, reports that his stock was slightly injured by water and smoke. The building, which is owned by F. Grote, was damaged to the amount of $1,000.
